Hall, Goitein State Viewpoints

• TWO POINTS OF VIEW unfolded last Wednesday at Hillel, on the subject of "Israel and the Middle East." Representing the Israeli side was David Goitein, Minister Plenipotentiary at the embassy. Harry P. Hall, director of Public Relations of the Middle East Institute talked as an interested American citizen. Professor H. R. Liden of the University Political Science department acted as moderator of the talks sponsored by Hillel Foundation, World Government Club, and Intercollegiate Zionist Federation of America.

Hall prefaced his remarks by saying that he spoke from the point of view of an American who desired peace in the Middle East as being necessary to world peace. Israel wants and needs peace with the Arabs as their economic and military security cannot be obtained otherwise. Peace with Israel, however, is not immediately vital to the Arab states. Obstacles to peace from the Arab side are: 1) Deep emotional opposition to a Jewish state exists. The Arabs feel an injustice has been done them and they will not be bought off by material offerings; 2) The Arabs identify Israel with United States imperialism. Israel receives as much aid from the United States as all the Arab states combined; 3) Some Arab leaders, and even states, probably would like to make peace with Israel, but fear to do so because of the damage to their prestige among the Arab states; 4) Arab nations are not yet prepared to come to a settlement based, in general, on the status quo; 5) The Arabs feel that under the present circumstances, Israel will be weakened by an accumulation of economic problems and that therefore time plays on their side; 6) Israel's policy of unlimited immigration produces the fear in the Arabs of possible future Israeli expansion.

Acheson To Talk Prices

• OPENING THE SPRING term under the auspices of the newly organized Enosian debate society, Dr. Edward C. Acheson, associate professor of finance, at the University, will speak on "Price and Wage Control," Tuesday, February 5, 4 p.m., Studio A, Lisner Auditorium.

The talk will be related to this season's intercollegiate debate topic, "Resolved: That the Federal Government should adopt a permanent program of price and wage controls."

Dr. Acheson's talk is the first in a series of events planned by the Enosian society to foster interest in debate here. Speaking contests, discussions, and public debates are planned by the debaters who have won 22 out of 30 tournament debates, an average of .733.

By stimulating interest with events such as Dr. Acheson's talk, the debators hope to increase their membership, according to Jim Robinson.

All students are invited and urged to attend and participate in the audience discussions following Dr. Acheson's talk.

Refreshments will be served.

Council Limits Positions Held

• THE STUDENT COUNCIL passed a resolution last Thursday night limiting the number of positions which can be held by one person. The resolution was presented by Nancy Dilli, director of Freshman activities.

It stated, in effect, that after January 10, a student may hold only one of the following major positions: editor of the Cherry Tree, member of the Board of Editors of the Hatchet, president of Pan Hellenic, president of the Inter-Fraternity Council, business manager of the Hatchet, business manager of the Cherry Tree, president of Omicron Delta Kappa, Student Council officers, chairman of the Career Conference, Student Council comptroller, president of Colonial Boosters.

The following offices were determined as minor, two of which constitute a major position: president of any other campus organization, treasurer of any other campus organization, member of the Sub-Editorial Board of the Hatchet, member of the Sub-Editorial Board of the Cherry Tree, manager of any varsity sport, all Career Conference appointed committed chairmen, members of the Executive Council, Colonial Boosters.

It was stated that this ruling does not affect present office holders. However, with regard to new appointments, a maximum of four minor positions may be held.

Lawyers Investigate Possible Law Paper

• THE STUDENT BAR Association, living up to campaign pledges of recently elected Vice President Jim Bear, and responding to suggestion of Professor Lewis Mayo, is studying the practicality of a law school newspaper. At present the law school is one of the few large law schools not having a law school newspaper.

A law school newspaper is definitely needed to increase interest and participation in activities outside the actual classroom, Bear commented. "At a city law school, a newspaper is the only effective and practical way of reaching all the day and night students. It has long been the sentiment of many students that the general level of spirit and interest in the law school could and should be raised," Bear said.

"Posters and announcements in class have not been sufficient; an energetic law school newspaper may be just what the doctor ordered for the low morale of students," Bear continued.

News of Legal Interest

The contents of the paper would not contain merely news of student activities, but would also include articles of general interest to the legal profession.

Career Conference Schedules Hershey

• MAJOR GENERAL Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, will be one of the two keynote speakers at this year's annual Career Conference, according to Stephen Balogh, chairman of the Career Conference appointed committed chairmen, members of the Executive Council, Colonial Boosters.

It was stated that this ruling does not affect present office holders. However, with regard to new appointments, a maximum of four minor positions may be held.

dents on the civil and economic aspects of world events.

Similar to Last Year

Organized much on the same pattern as last year, the opening general session of the 1952 Career Conference will get under way in Lisner Auditorium, February 20, 7:15 p.m. Following addresses by the two keynote speakers, the session will adjourn to individual career forums in various rooms throughout buildings on campus. The forums will consist of an hour of talks by experts on their particular fields. A question period of an hour to an hour and a half will follow during which students will be free to question the speakers regarding their careers and the job prospects in their individual fields. "Each of the forum speakers will be nationally known and highly competent in their fields," Mr. Balogh reported.

Committee Studies Problem

The committee currently engaged in studying the project of a separate newspaper for the law school consists of Don Cassity, Earl Monschein, Ron Ransanen, Bob Lutz, Ed Stirring, Bo Laws, Jr., Fred Jans, and Harvey Rosendorf. These students have found enthusiastic support from both students and faculty.

The chief obstacle to be overcome is financial. A four page printed newspaper, of the same type as the Hatchet would cost approximately $250 an issue for 1000 copies. "Probably the law school newspaper will have to begin on a more modest scale; perhaps a mimeographed publication published every two weeks," Bear stated.

Tryouts For Players

• TRYOUTS FOR "The Proposal," a drama, and "Overtones," a comedy, will be held in Studio A, Lisner Auditorium, Thursday, January 17, 8:30 p.m., for students taking six hours or more. This activity is part of The University Players Club's Workshop. (See story on Page 3)

Marvin Salutes AFROTC Site

• THE ADVENT of the first military organization to function on the university campus was formally recognized Friday morning with the dedication of Chapin Hall, new headquarters and classroom building of AFROTC.

A 17-man honor flight was on hand to pay military honor to such visiting dignitaries as Lt. Gen. Lawrence S. Kuter, deputy chief of staff, Personnel Headquarters, USAF and Col. Joseph A. Bulger, USAF, commanding officer, First Air Force, Mitchel Air Force Base, N. Y.

Marvin Makes Speech

President Cloyd Marvin, in a dedication speech, stated the necessity of greater coordination between the civil and military aspects of our life. After this speech, Col. Walter G. Bryte accepted charge of the building on behalf of the U. S. Air Force.

Displayed throughout the building from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. were exhibits illustrating every imaginable aspect of the Air Force from field procedural equipment to classroom devices. Illuminated running commentaries delivered by Air Force officers on the various displays related to their special fields. In the case of the link trainer, one of the feature attractions of the day, actual demonstrations were given.

Colorful displays depicting the activities of Military Air Transport Service, Air Rescue Service, and Air Weather Service were effective in illustrating the coordination between long-range Air Force activities in perspective with the immediate training offered by the AFROTC.

Early Models Shown

To complete the assembly of modern equipment currently used in communications, navigation, and survival, were models of early aircraft built by the Wright Brothers.

The Open House served to acquaint 1000 visitors with some of the main aspects of AFROTC training, and, according to Captain Wm. R. Smith, public relations officer, about 30 inquiries were received from male students interested in the program.

'Post' Prints Binder's Bit On Baby Son

• UNIVERSITY SENIOR, Sam Binder, has hit the jack pot. The Saturday Evening Post has accepted his article for publication, paying him over $500.

While taking a course in the writing and selling of feature articles, under Edwin D. Neff, he was suddenly forced to stop his work due to the serious illness of his baby son. He was called suddenly from class one morning, so grave was the child's condition.

Later, as a class exercise, he wrote the details of the experience and his reactions.

Although this is the highest price secured by a student to date for a paper prepared in this course, it is far from being unusual. It is estimated that between 25 and 30 per cent of the papers written for this class, in the past few years, have been sold to publications.

Lou Stockstill, last year's feature editor of the Hatchet, who received his BA in journalism last June, and is now a reporter for the Army and Navy Journal, sold to newspapers and magazines, every paper he prepared for the feature writing class.

The class is now in its fourth successive year. Morning sections, only are now offered. Next semester, however, an evening section will be added, with William C. Strand, of the Times Herald, as instructor.

Accreditors Face Radical Revision

• THE COMPLETE ELIMINATION of more than 300 independent college and university accrediting agencies was recommended by the National Commission on Accrediting after more than a year of study, at their meeting at the University last week.

The radical move toward revision of accrediting practices and procedures (untouched for nearly 50 years), was deemed necessary "to break up the guild pattern that has developed in our educational system."

The commission, representing 1,200 of the nation's 1,600 institutions of higher learning, suggested that full reliance of accreditation rights on an "institution-wide" basis, be given to the six regional accrediting agencies already set up by the colleges themselves.

Secretary of the commission, Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, in reporting the new plan to a group of some 400 college presidents and officials meeting in Lisner Auditorium last week said, "It would leave colleges free to determine their own objectives" and would end the domination of professional teaching by "outside professional groups."

If put into effect the plan means the relegation of medical, chemical, engineering and bar associations, for example, to mere advisory organizations, with none of the accreditation rights now claimed.

Accreditation is a formal okay by a recognized agency, certifying to the approval of courses, divisions, and administration of a university and the maintenance of particular educational and scholastic standards, such as degree requirements, and quality of instructors.

Accredited institutions will not recognize many transferred credits from certain unaccredited colleges and universities.

Although accrediting agencies did set up needed controls, early in the century, for establishing minimum standards for colleges, they now have grown to over 300 agencies, each with its own regulations and requirements, said Reuben G. Gustavsen, president of the commission.

A "guild attitude" developed,

Jaws Grind Out Initiative

• THE CRYING NEED FOR pencil sharpeners here at the University is only another example of the mechanism of this age.

Why, the familiar picture of the small boy sharpening his pencil by the light of the fireplace has forever vanished from our homes. The art of whittling itself, has almost vanished. We no longer take out our penknives when a pencil point breaks, but we stick it in the grinding jaws of a hungry machine, one of hundreds of hungry machines that are devouring our individual initiative and self-respect, and rendering the whole nation lazy and morally lax.

In some of the less privileged countries there are no pencil sharpeners. And those people are individuals, not part of an idiot crowd who would blankly stand in line at a pencil sharpener to have their work done for them.

The whole thing is part of an alarming trend in this country, and to somewhat alleviate this condition, the University should do its part by providing penknives in the library, not pencil sharpeners.

Players Set Rejuvenation; Election Held

• A REJUVENATED University Players has elected officers and revised its program for the new semester.

Paul McVey was elected president of the drama club. Other officers are Georg Tennyson, vice president; Frances Newton, re-elected recording secretary; Jennifer Ellington, corresponding secretary; and Alan Downing, treasurer.

Theatre Workshop

The new program will operate on a theatre workshop basis by which students interested in acting, directing, producing, and designing will participate in numerous productions during the semester. All the shows will be produced in the arena style and independent of the major University productions, sponsored by the speech department.

The first production will be two one act plays, February 28 and 29. "The Proposal," a drama by Chekov, will be directed by Phil Gragan, a drama major. Kaki McGee will direct the other play, "Overtones," a comedy by Gerstenberg.

Tryouts Thursday

Tryouts for both plays will be held Thursday, 8:30 p.m., Studio A, Lisner Auditorium. All undergraduates taking six hours or more are eligible. The next meeting of the University Players will be February 6. Refreshments will be served.

The new president invites all old and prospective members to this meeting.

SBA Opens Job Office, Gives Help

• THE LAW SCHOOL Placement Service, which has been largely inactive during the Fall Semester, is being reopened and reactivated by the incoming SBA officers," Bill Granberry, president, said today.

The SBA has recently appointed Glenn L. Archer, Jr., as chairman. Under his direction the Placement Office in Harlan Brewer House will be open Monday through Friday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and Wednesday and Friday from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

"The purposes of the Placement Service are to aid law students, both graduates and undergraduates in finding jobs, part-time or full-time, in the non-legal as well as the legal fields," Granberry stated. To achieve these purposes, the Placement Service is being completely reorganized. A Placement Bulletin Board with descriptions of the many job opportunities will be installed on the main floor of the Law School. Jobs of interest to law students will be centralized in one Law School Placement Office.

For the coming semester the assistants from the first year class will include Bolitha Laws, Ron Ranszen, Gary Theurer and Ed Dorosh. Upper classmen who have also volunteered to help are Bill Davis, Ed Stirling, and Dave Grammer.

Orientation Program Rouses Student Bar

• JIM BEAR, SBA vice president, today announced a definite freshman orientation program for incoming law students. During registration period one or more SBA officers will be present to pass out SBA membership cards and answer any questions of new students.

Paul Praises Insurance Role

• "THE ROLE OF Insurance in the Business World Today" was the topic discussed recently by Duane Paul, before Alpha Kappa Psi, professional fraternity in Business Administration.

Paul, who is district manager for the State Farm Mutual Insurance Co., outlined the history of insurance by tracing its development from the Phoenicians, who used the first system of spreading business risks, down to the vast and complex insurance system in the business field today.

"Our present system of insurance policies," continued Paul, "was derived from the marine insurance system developed by Italian seamen in the year 1200. Although the first life insurance policy was not written until 1853, our present set up did not come upon the scene until the turn of the present century when industrial conditions began to require the individual to seek methods of spreading the risks against physical and financial odds."

The manager pointed out that our present system is centered around the three basic types of insurance with which the ordinary individual is concerned. These are life, fire and automobile insurance. The complex economies and judicial systems of today require the individual to spread his risks among at least one or more of these fields.

Seek Folly Talent

• JUNIOR CLASS students with any talent in dancing, singing, writing, music, acting, directing, costume designing, and others, are needed for the All U Follies, announced Gerald L. Watson, junior class president.

All interested juniors should drop a slip in the Student Union Suggestion Box with their name, address, phone number and talent.

"This information is necessary so that the class of 1953 can repeat the success it achieved last year as sophomores by winning the All U Follies," said Watson.

A mimeographed letter, describing the SBA and its activities, has been prepared. It will be passed out to new students as they register for classes.

Harry Sells, dean of Delta Theta Phi, has assured the SBA officers that members of his fraternity will be present during registration to answer any questions of new students.

A special orientation program for first year students is scheduled for Wednesday, February 6. O. S. Colclough, dean of the Law School, will welcome the incoming students. All faculty members will be introduced and professors will give short speeches on topics of interest to beginning law students.

The President of the SBA will explain the organization and functions of the SBA and introduce all the SBA officers. The Editor of the Law Review, the President of Case Club, and the Director of the Student Placement Service will also be introduced. They will give short speeches.

The first social activity for incoming students will be the Law School smoker to be held Thursday, February 7. This smoker will be sponsored jointly by the SBA and the legal fraternities and sororities.

Frat Meets, Worrell Talks

• PHI DELTA GAMMA, national graduate fraternity, held its regular monthly meeting last Sunday, at Woodhill House.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, Miss Florence Worrell, a member of the International Staff of the Women's Bureau, Department of Labor, addressed members and rushees on "The Present Status of Women." Miss Worrell is working on the Exchange of Persons Program. Before coming to Washington, she was executive director of the Y.W.C.A. in Hamilton, Ohio.

George E. Callas was chairman of the hostesses for the rush tea which followed the meeting.

Law School Paper

• THE STUDENT BAR Association's proposal to institute a newspaper for the law school is an admirable one and one that, if followed through, should result in greater unification within the law school.

Establishing a newspaper on anything approaching the professional level is, of course, no easy proposition. Work and time are important factors, but equally important are the factors of financial support and journalistic skill. Work and time are dependent on the students involved and journalistic skill can be acquired by anyone interested. The money question is something else. At present it has not been made clear just how the SBA expects to get the $250 necessary for a four-page paper, but it seems unlikely that financial support will be forthcoming from the University. An effort to work through the alumni of the law school, many of whom are influential lawyers in Washington, might bring satisfactory results.

Regardless of what method the students of the law school employ to achieve their aim of bringing forth a law school newspaper, even if it begins as a mimeographed publication, the effect of such a publication should be one that stimulates the law school membership toward more interest in their own school.

If the law school is successful in bringing forth its own newspapers, other large schools on campus of a specialized nature might follow suit and publish their own newspapers directed specifically toward the composition of the individual school, printing material which, for lack of space, can not find a place in the Hatchet. Much activity takes place in individual schools which is of such limited interest that Hatchet space restrictions prohibit its appearance in the paper. An individual paper in a school would at once allow space for news of limited interest and at the same time build up a feeling of integration within the school.

Final Exams

• IT'S NO NEWS to tell you that finals are dangerously near. Nor is it news to tell you that the time for study is dangerously close. But it might not be amiss to inform some of you more wayward students that it's a good deal wiser to study now than to rely on crib notes or the bright kid who sits next to you.

The University has not yet inaugurated an honor system (which we think would be a good idea), but many instructors attempt as far as possible to follow such a system. For immature students this provides the golden opportunity to cheat. If we expect to be treated as adults we must conduct ourselves in an adult fashion. Cheating is far from adult.

We can prove our ability to shoulder responsibility when we conduct ourselves maturely during finals.

Lonesome Pine

• CHRISTMAS TIME CAME and brought along the annual Christmas tree in the University yard, supplied by the Engineers Council. This was a worthy gesture on the part of the Engineers, but a good thing can be carried too far.

Today, lying forlornly on its side, the now tired Christmas tree remains in the University yard, a constant reminder that a job well done is a job completed. The tree dedication took place December 18. That's 28 days ago. A record might be set if the tree stays around much longer.

Won't somebody take away the Christmas tree? May Convocation might be a little messy if it has to go on over the remains of the lonesome pine.

Study Profs to Get 'A'

By LOUISE BIGELOW

Question: How do you study for exams?

Answers:

Jane Miller: (Sophomore) Just hope and trust to luck.

Jim Larkin: (Freshman) I just open a book and stare at it for awhile.

Maxine Saurel: (Sophomore) Don't!!! It's futile.

Jeanne Carol Zitmore: (Freshman) First I lock myself in my room and try to imagine what the exams will be like. After deciding that nobody knows what goes on in the minds of the professors, I give up and go to the movies.

Neil Segal: (Freshman) Well, I ask around to find out what kind of test the professor gives, then I prepare myself accordingly. When I walk into the room I usually find that he gives a different kind of test. You know the result.

Jack McAuliffe: (Senior) It is very simple to prepare for exams. All you have to do is review your notes, read the text and concentrate. Oh, I almost forgot; it helps if you can read the professor's mind, also.

Kathleen McGee: (Junior) I rely mostly on my class notes. If I have the time and the willpower, I correlate the notes with the assigned reading. I really spend most of my time psychoanalysing the professor and trying to spot the questions.

To The Editors

In The Mailbag

Wolfe Upholds Mr. X

To the Editors:

In his letter to the editors last week, Bill Fuchs expressed his opinions on my interview (not interviews) with Mr. X as a "sports-writer on the Star with more than five years experience." At that rate he might become an acceptable reporter in another decade.

Like every criticism of the Hatchet sports pages that has been made by reporters from daily papers to date, Fuchs' comments were not only childish, but plain stupid. From his very first sentence, Fuchs made his letter ridiculous.

The Star reporter opened his letter with the statements, "One of the first requisites learned by all aspiring newspaper men is to keep a story within the limits of known facts. Speculation is left to editors and columnists and even then is not brought out disguised as factual elements in a story." Phooey!

One of the most popular and respected daily papers in the nation runs a column each Monday morning called "The Old Grad," in which open criticisms much more flagrant than those which have appeared in the Hatchet are made in an unsigned column. The column is conducted by a much respected newspaper man who is so much farther advanced in his field than is Fuchs that I cannot even begin to draw a comparison. Nor is this practice a new one. Several big dailies have done this same type of thing at different times, each finding that such a column meets with much popularity, although it always leads to a great deal of controversy.

Another point—if speculation is limited to editors and columnists, well I was an editor and I was a columnist. But you can't prove that there is no speculation in newspaper articles in daily papers by Fuchs and other Star sportswriters. As a matter of fact, Fuchs, along with Merrill Whittlesey, are cardinal violators of the school of objective reporting. It takes only a few glances at their past articles in the Star to see that.

Furthermore, if Fuchs advocates factual writing so strongly, why doesn't he practice his own theory? He constantly refers to "A talk with Mr. X" in his letter as giving only suspicious evidence and nothing factual. But Fuchs, when he wrote that, had no idea whether the statements made by Mr. X and myself were factual or not. Here let me say that every word printed in those interviews was absolutely true and factual, and I have proof. Fuchs forgets, too, that the anonymous Mr. X's are or were members of GW basketball team who know far more than Fuchs or myself about the sport. This was my purpose precisely—to print opinions of people who know what they are talking about, who are far more qualified to make statements than Fuchs or any Colonial fan.

Fuchs also says that the treatment of GW's basketball team was unfair, which I must admit made me laugh out loud rather than frown. I have promoted this ball club, which is composed of a great bunch of guys and a great bunch of athletes, in every way. I have made a few insignificant digs at the coaching, but I have never had anything but praise for the Colonials' basketball and football teams, as far as the players are concerned.

As for remaining anonymous in this particular column, I did so the first time the interview appeared in order to protect Mr. X, whom I promised would always remain unknown. However, notice that in the second "Mr. X" article I signed B. W. at the bottom of the interview.

Lastly, the emphasis placed on "Mr. X" by the dailies has made it appear that I have done much criticizing in my sports pages. This is not true. Outside of a few digs at Rowland and Reinhart, there has been nothing but promotion in my sports pages—promotion for the players, promotion for a women's activities building, and promotion for intramural sports.

Had I wished to do some real criticizing, there was plenty of material available for me to draw upon at GW. Suffice it to say that I could have written facts about head coach Bo Rowland which might have caused a tremendous row around the university, and that I could have caused a great deal of embarrassment for Mr. Reinhart, even though I will be the first to say that nobody knows more about basketball than the latter.

Instead I have purposely restrained from criticizing Rowland and Reinhart so as not to add another scandal to the growing list in the dailies, this one centered around GW. I was so interested in athletics at GW that I wished a few changes could be made in the coaching systems here. However, I was also interested enough not to draw any scandal to the school, despite the silly comments which reporters on downtown papers have been making—and they have been silly.

PROFESSORS' RATING:

3000 students participating in 70 courses at the University of Southern California will grade their professors and rate their courses. In a questionnaire form students will analyze classroom instruction. Instructors will be rated as excellent, good, average, fair, and poor. General student reaction is asked as to the value of the course, and his degree of interest. Another section in the questionnaire relates to a general presentation of the subject both as to lectures and text material with emphasis on general handling of the course and organization of the subject. The final section asks the scholar's recommendations for improving the course.

SPORTS:

Undefeated Kansas has been named as the nation's top basketball team by the Associated Press. Kansas drew 38 firsts from the 102 A. P. ballots cast by sports writers and sportscasters. Illinois received 21 to finish second, and Kentucky got 12 votes to come in third. Six of the first ten A. P. teams have perfect records: Kansas 11-0, Illinois 8-0, Indiana 8-0, St. Bonaventure 7-0, Seton Hall 10-0, and Iowa 8-0.

Kansas tied for the Big Seven conference title in 1950 with Kansas State and Nebraska. In the four years of the conference from 1948 to 1951 Kansas State teams have either won or shared the conference title.

JOURNALISM MEET:

The School of Journalism of Texas University will play host to the editors and reporters of leading Texas Newspapers. Texas newspaper seminars are sponsored by the Texas Daily Newspaper Association in cooperation with the School of Journalism. This first meeting will bring an exchange of ideas and experiences through discussions. Discussion leaders will be 14 Texas newspaper executives representing leading publications of Texas. Topics of the informal discussion will include "The City Editor and His Staff," "Planning and Assigning a Story," "Gathering the local news, pictures and campaigns, and publicity."

LACKING INDIVIDUALS:

Purdue University thinks that the average campus of today seems to be built around groups with little emphasis on individualism. In the Purdue Exponent the opinion is given that the goal of Joe College is to be like his roommates or those standouts in extracurricular activities. The editorial goes on to state that Joe College refuses to think for himself and thus becomes the stereotyped model of his leaders.

The editorial claims that each person is different but when he comes to college he loses his own opinions becoming a victim of groups in which each person strives to be like every other at the expense of individuality. He is a lost individual and his existence as such is his own fault. "College are supposedly the foundation of thought and progress. From them arise the leaders of tomorrow. But if these persons do not know how to think or act for themselves, they will make poor leaders when they graduate."

MUTUAL MISTAKE

House Mother: "I thought I saw you taking a gentleman up to your room last night."

Pi Phi: "Yeah, that's what I thought, too."

Buff Beauty—Abbie Oliver

• THIS WEEK'S Buff Beauty is Abbie Oliver. She is the second of the Cherry Tree Queen candidates chosen by the Hatchet Board of Editors.

She was nominated for Cherry Tree Queen by virtue of winning the Jelleff's fashion award. Abbie is an active Delta Gamma and serves as rush chairman of her sorority.

Abbie is a Physical Education major and is secretary of the Physical Educations Majors Club. She was a Colonial cheerleader last year.

The ADPi pledges serenaded George Buckmaster with the Sweetheart Song at the ADPi-Acacia coffee hour. How do you do it, George? Ann Hudgins, ADPi, seen entertaining Marine Dick Walker, ATO from Texas. KDS Jean Arnn, Ginnie Perrott, and Pat Jackson have been asked what's so interesting about the Maryland Delta Sigs?

"Who was going where in what costume?" might have been asked at Strong Hall Saturday night as students in various stages of over-dress and undress collected prior to heading for the SAE Bal Boheme and the Sigma Chi Pirates Ball. When everybody finally got where he was going, everybody (or almost everybody) had a wonderful time.

The SAEs who stipulated that all comers must be dressed as comic strip characters finally decided that Bob Panetteri and Namoi Lewis (the New Year and the Devil) were the best dressed couple. Bob Rolander as A. Mutt was considered the best dressed boy while the best dressed girl was Lorelei Lundry as Bun-Bun from Pogo. The funniest character (by this time it was getting pretty late) was Bob Gutt, Phi Alpha, who appeared as Prince Valiant. But Bob wasn't the only Prince V. Both Sherwood Drake and Everett Severe also came as Prince Valiant.

Cathy Coates, KKG, appeared as Dinnie Dimwit. Both Betty Ormsby, KKG, and Pat Finnegan, KKG, showed up as the Dragon Lady. Everybody else seemed to have the same idea, too, with Anne Ellis and Dick Generally, Warren Hull and Ellen Ingersoll all coming as characters from Chas. Adams. Ellen and Warren, perhaps rushing things a bit, were chained together. Margo Hunt, Theta pledge, and Bill Deck will be present as Charlie Brown and his girl friend. Edie Harper came as the nurse from Terry and the Pirates. Frances Newton, KD, spent Friday night with her head in a tub. When she removed it her hair came out red. This was all because Hatch. Ed. Newton was going to the Bal Boheme as Brenda Starr. No one recognized her in the dark. "I'm really not a member myself" Tennyson went as the Mystery Man. Bino Barreira, dressed as Captain Marvel, along with his faithful companion Mary Marvel (better known as Pat Frankouser, Pi Phi) led the grand march as the evening came to its Bohemian close.

Now for the Sigma Chis. After sending out a surveying expedition (real sons of G.W., you know) the Sigs were prepared for the half-mile trek from the parking area to the Cameron Club, hidden rustic lodge in the heart of lower Alexandria. No one was fooled, but Harry Kriemel-meyer came as a Kappa and his date, Lala Mather, KKG, (who also didn't fool anyone) came as a Sigma Chi. Red-union-suiting that night was Bob McGrath as a Russian Captain (red, you understand). A ghoulish townswee were Bob Bloch and Marilyn Sandwick, KKG, Ann Smith, KD pledge, in her leopard something-or-other, was pursued by Frank Buck Beale with his lethal camera.

The Phi Sigma Kappas, playing it late or early (we don't quite know which) held a rush party last Saturday in, of all surprising things, normal dress. Jean Arnn, KD, and Roger Choisser, Kappa Sig, (who was being rushed?) were among those present as were Pat Jackson, KD, and Tom Perrott. Flossie Hagan, was flown in from New Jersey to be with Phi Sig proxy Deacon Riecken. Millie Luers, KD, was seen with Mel Christman. There must have been rushmen, but nobody told us their names.

This is all lots of fun but finals are getting near and this little Foggy Bottom has got to get himself up to Brownley's for a quickie (drink, that is) before heading for the books. Meet 'cha under the crib notes.

'Mare's' Gonna Rest At Last

By JUDY MOFFETT

• "PLANS AFTER GRADUATION? I'm gonna rest and vote." This is the resolute battle cry of Marilyn Sandwick, active University senior.

Now that she is 21, Mare intends to exercise her legal prerogative immediately when she returns home to native Chicago. At the same time she will be resting from her strenuous college career before tackling some job in the production end of television.

"I'm well aware that my history major and television work don't seem to have too much connection," explains Mare, "but ever since I started school, history has been my favorite subject. Then, too, I've sort of been raised on TV and radio. Both my father and brothers do that kind of thing."

Mare adds, however, that she has thought of teaching, though the other interests her far more.

Long List of Activities

A brief list of Mare's activities shows how well she deserves her recent election to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Along with being president of Strong Hall dormitory council, Mare is secretary of Mortar Board, senior women's honorary; vice president of her sorority, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and vice president of Delphi, sorority women's honorary. To this imposing activity sheet is added membership in Tassels, vice president of her pledge class, president of Panhellenic, 1950-51, membership on the Student Life board and the Who's Who nominating committee for last year, and social chairwoman of Big Sis.

Likes to Dance

"When not busy with activities and school, I like to dance," Mare continues. "I love to both give and go to parties, too."

As far as sports go, Marilyn rates golf first with tennis as second choice. "The social sports," she explains. "Almost anything with people in it is fine with me."

Asked why she's called Mare, live-wire Sandwick replies that "I was born whinnying and I've been called that ever since I can remember."

"Oh, there's one other thing I'm going to do when I get home to Chicago," hastily adds ardent fan Marilyn, before rushing off to her favorite history class, "I'm gonna root for the Chicago White Sox in the next World's Series!"

Kraus' Nest

By STEPHEN KRAUS

• I HAVE REFRAINED, up till now, from writing about New York, somewhat in the manner of the man who hesitates to speak about something he has recently lost and has not quite gotten over. The fact that I am breaking the silence should not be taken to mean that I have gotten over anything, although those who know me could point out that I can scarcely be said to have lost New York, having known it and all its ways for less than five years. But I am writing this column on Sunday, and for some time now, when in New York, I have followed a routine that is difficult to forget even when it is broken.

Nearly every Sunday, then, I could have been found in the Museum of Modern Art. About a year ago, a girl I used to know at New York University, a school I attended before I transferred to George Washington, got me, through connections in the motion picture department there, an art student's pass to the Museum. My affection for it, now that I could enter the premises for only 10 cents instead of usual 60 cents, naturally increased practically to the point of obsession.

Designs Exhibited

In the museum proper there are, besides paintings and sculptures of the modern school, frequent exhibitions of good design in current use. Some time ago they had a show of good design as used in the automobile industry throughout the world. For this, eight cars of various American and foreign makes were shown, dating from a 1930 German Daimler all the way up to last year's Studebaker. So you see that one can come here for all kinds of sights, not just to puzzle out what the hell Picasso did mean in this or the other painting.

Thinking Lost Art

Something that requires almost no use of the dome, though, seems to be afoot in the land. It would be escaping my responsibility as someone who has the opportunity to appear in print if I did not comment upon it. I hope that it has already been guessed that I am alluding to television. Now here is something which could be a tremendous, wonderful source of entertainment and instruction for everybody. Instead we find that most of it is pretty bad. The movies, when in their prime, were admittedly made for the average 12-year-old mind. The television industry has gone its Hollywood rivals more than one better. Can any of us name more than a handful of shows on TV that can really be called worth watching? "The Show of Shows," with Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca, Ed R. Murrow's "See It Now," a couple of dramatic shows and what else? But here is no mere pastime, no amusement of a few moments that one has to oneself. The television industry is fast becoming the chief source of amusement to the whole nation. It can and does occasionally command an audience of nearly forty million people. What is it doing with this great responsibility?

I asked a bookstore owner a couple of days ago how his business was going. His reply, which gave me to understand that things could not be worse, laid the chief blame on television. Some months ago, while waiting for a girl friend of mine in front of a grade school in which she was student teaching, I asked a couple of youngsters whether they had TV sets at home. One of them had just gotten one. I asked him how many hours a day, roughly speaking, did he watch it? "About four hours a day," he replied. I was curious to find out what he had done with his time before his family had gotten the set. He told me that he had spent the time either reading or playing with his friends. Here is the chief point I would like to make. At the present time TV substitutes, for all kinds of activities, a forcible but pleasing spoon-feeding of mish-mash. Grown-ups might have talked, kids might have played before; now all is still. It seems to me that a certain diminution of individual initiative must be the inescapable result. It is time for television to grow up. Not in spite, but because so many kids watch it, it must learn to start asking questions instead of merely giving the answers. When television begins to make people think, instead of being a substitute for thought, it will have grown up to its promise and responsibility.

Lutz, Johnson Direct Committee on Legal Aid

• FOLLOWING A MODERN trend in the legal field, the SBA officers have named Bob Lutz and Farnum Johnson to head a committee on Legal Aid for the spring semester. The Committee will work with a similar committee of the District of Columbia Bar Association in investigating the problem of helping those unable to pay for legal services.

The benefits to be derived from students assisting in legal aid work clinic are twofold. In addition to furnishing some legal advice to those unable to pay for it, it will provide a means of furthering students education by giving them an opportunity to deal with real live problems and cases.

Investigation of Problems

A complete investigation of the problems has long been advocated as a joint project for the sociology and legal departments by interested members of the legal profession.

Presently legal aid clinics are in operation and have been found to be outstanding successes in Denver, New York, Boston, and Durham.

John S. Bradway, professor of law at Duke University and director of its legal aid clinic attested in a recent article in the Virginia Law Weekly that the value of the legal aid clinic to the student is found in taking legal education out of the realm of the hypothetical.

cal question and bringing it down to practical factual situation.

Client's Difficulties

He stated further that "the client does not have a tag on his lapel stating that, 'I am a tort case,' nor does he have in his hand a case book and open it to page 786 where his immediate problem is found. He is more likely to say, 'I am in difficulty, help me out,' and then leave the lawyer to carry the ball."

This problem of diagnosing the factual situation of an actual case is one the future lawyer faces most often in his practice and is least well prepared for after his former legal education. It is this problem that the Legal Aid Committee can help to solve.

Lunn Teaches Four R's, Runs Placement Office

By PEPPER SALTO

• I STEPPED INTO a freshly-painted white room, cheery with colored slips tacked all over the walls. A table in front of me had a sign: the four R's of placement.

A tall brunette introduced herself as Miss Ruth Lunn, student placement officer. She introduced me to husky University student, Bill Shirey, student assistant. Bill proceeded to show what the four R's are. First: READ INSTRUCTIONS. Second: REGISTER, that is, fill out a card with information and get interviewed by Miss Lunn. The interview is for the purpose of "objective evaluation of qualification." Third: REQUEST REFERRAL, that is select a job from one of the cards.

Students Hasty

Sometimes a student will just grab the first one he sees. "One of the principles of placement is to help the student get the job that best fits him. Also to give the employer the best applicant," Miss Lunn said. Fourth: REPORT results of interview, to the office. I asked, "Do all students and employers report back?" Miss Lunn shook her head sadly, "My work would be lessened by about 25 per cent if they did. When they don't, I have no way of knowing whether the job has been filled or not, without my calling the employer."

Leonard Vaughan is the personnel officer for the University. Two student assistants work there for academic credit in personnel. The office is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., but student hours are from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. However, so many people are free only from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. that Miss Lunn wonders whether it would be wiser to change the office hours. She cannot do it though, unless a survey of the student body is made.

Questions Asked

A round of questions started. Have you interviewed many people? "Oh, from 15 to 20,000, mostly technical and professional." Do the assistants file? "Oh, they know how, but filing is below graduate level training." This isn't a dig at the students, she explains, but she feels they aren't taking the course to learn how to file, so she teaches them proper placement procedures and qualification evaluation. "That's the goal of the training program." Job Jots in the Hatchet is written by Miss Lunn. "There have been jobs for $7,500 a year there," she stated.

are: tripartite agreement guaranteeing the armistice frontiers; extension of technical assistance to Arabs and Israel; broaching the proposal for allied Middle East Command including Arab states and Israel; leading efforts at easing and solving the refugee problem.

Hall then suggested some possible actions that the United States could undertake to overcome these obstacles and to remove some of the Arab suspicions of American imperialism. A broad attitude of equality toward Asiatic peoples leads the list of suggested actions. Others are: extension of economic and technical aid to the Arabs, material aid to the refugees by the United Nations and relief agencies, assurance to the Arabs by the United States that Israel is not receiving unlimited financial aid.

Goitein's View Subjective

Goitein stated that he could only speak from the subjective viewpoint of the Israeli citizen.

He questioned the view that the Arabs were, as a people opposed to Israel, but asserted that the great majority of them were suppressed and not given an opportunity to become fully literate and politically-conscious. "Arab opinion," he said "is the opinion of the top level of the Arab population. They have their ruling clique which direct the political and economic life of the country and which do not usually conform with the best interest of the people."

Goitein reflected on the history

VA Lists New Rules For GI Bill Veterans

• VETERANS ADMINISTRATION today reminded veterans training under the GI Bill of some basic rules and regulations that must be followed in order to stay in training at government expense, now that the July 25, 1951 cut-off date for starting has passed.

The post-cut-off date rulings apply to most, but not all, veterans now in training. Those few not affected include veteran trainees who were discharged from service less than four years ago, and whose individual cut-off dates have not yet arrived.

Do's and Don'ts

Here are VA's "do's" and "don'ts" of post-cut-off-date training:

A veteran continuing his training after the cut-off date must pursue his course continuously until it is completed—except for interruptions under conditions beyond his control. Such allowable interruptions include the normal summer vacation, as well as recall to active military service.

Once a veteran completes or discontinues his course after the cut-off date he may not start another.

Reasons For Change

Satisfactory reasons for change are these:

1. When a veteran is not making satisfactory progress in his present course and the failure is not due to his own misconduct, neglect or lack of application.

2. When the course to which he desires to change is more in keeping with his aptitudes, previous education, training or other pertinent factors.

3. When the course to which he wants to change is a normal progression from his current course, and will help him attain his educational or vocational objective.

No additional changes of course will be approved, except for the most cogent reasons, VA said.

VA explained that most veterans not actually in training on the July 25, 1951 cut-off date no longer are eligible for the GI Bill training benefit. But those who had enrolled before the deadline may continue until they complete their courses or run out of GI entitlement. For the great majority of veterans, the entire GI training program winds up on July 25, 1951.

AFROTC

At present, the AFROTC consists of 103 freshmen students, with prospects of more for the forthcoming semester. Unlike the University of Maryland, a land-grant school where military training is compulsory, the AFROTC is open only to those students interested in the opportunities which it has to offer. Two hours of academic credit are offered per semester plus one hour of drill, with a potential commission in store for those students who receive their degrees after four years of AFROTC. All interested students are urged by AFROTC officers to find out about this training program. All questions are being answered in Chapin Hall, corner of Colonial and Joe Lane.

PhiA's Down SAE, DTD Edged By PiKA, SX Victor

By STEVE LEVY

With exams starting this Monday, all fraternity teams are looking forward to a between semester vacation after completing the first half of their schedule. At the halfway point, it looks like the closest race will be for first place in League A between Sigma Chi and PiKA, who are fighting it out for the League A championship.

League B

PhiA, 43-SAE, 30

In the day's hardest fought game PhiA overcame an early SAE lead and went on to chalk up their third straight win. They now are in first place in League B.

Scoring three quick baskets on fast breaks, SAE took a 6-0 lead over the surprised Phi Alphans and it wasn't until three minutes had elapsed in the first quarter that Mary Rosenblatt scored PhiA's first points on a one-handed jump shot. As the taller PhiA team began to clear both boards, they slowly caught up with the fast SAE team. The first frame ended in an 8-8 tie.

In the second quarter PhiA took the lead and when the first half ended, they held a slim five point margin.

In the last half with Bob Goldstein, Mary Rosenblatt, and Syl Goldin netting 24 points between them SAE was unable to close the gap although they continued to press. Goldin and Charlie Goldberg were the big rebound men for PhiA, while Jack Tivnan and Bobby Cilento took their share for SAE. Bob Goldstein had 16 points and Rosenblatt, 12 for the PhiA's and for SAE Tivnan and Joe Logan bucketed 10 points each. Oddly enough only 3 foul shots were made by both teams in whole game.

TEP, 29-Sigma Nu, 15

It was the same story again as Sigma Nu went down to their third straight defeat. However, they had one small consolation in knowing that they had hit their season's highest total.

Sigma Nu just couldn't keep pace with the faster and smoother TEP men. In the last half TEP took it easy playing their reserves most of the way. The two Bernies, Boroson and Band teamed up to score 15 points. TEP's 29 points were also their high for the season.

League B Standings

Team	W	L	Team	W	L
PhiA	3	0	TEP	1	2
SAE	2	1	Sigma Nu	0	3

League A

PiKA, 36-DTD, 34

PiKA continues to be undefeated, but they had to extend themselves to get by a tough DTD team. The Pikes found a double scoring punch in Warren Lytle and Bugs Thompson. Thompson scored 8 points in the first half while Lytle threw in 12 out of his 17 points in the second half.

DTD jumped off to a 13-7 first quarter lead over the slow starting Pikes, as DTD set shots found the mark. In the second frame PiKA rallied with Jim England and Thompson providing the spark and at halftime, the score was deadlocked at 20-20.

PiKA started slowly again in the second half until Lytle took over. Scoring on jump shots and layups (after he had stolen the ball) Lytle sparked his team a 6 point spread going into the last frame.

Proposal Would End Charges for Sports

ONE OF THE MORE radical programs for the cleanup of the collegiate athletic scene has been brought forth by little Grinnell College of Iowa, whose president, faculty and coaching staff advocate abolition of charges to the public for athletic games.

physical education department, the faculty, or administration of the college should have a voice in determining either policy of procedure for the athletic program.

cessful, Andy recovered a fumble setting the stage for a South touchdown. On the last play of the first half the North again, on the march, Andy once more intercepted on his own twenty-two yard line and ran it back to the North eight-yard line—the play covering seventy yards, before being driven out of bounds.

In the second half, Andy got his first chance on offense having been restricted to defense in the first half. With Fred Benners of Southern Methodist throwing and Andy receiving, the South marched downfield. Andy caught passes for 12 and 15 yards and then one which traveled 25 yards in the air and Andy adding another 33 running to the north eight-yard line. Benners and Andy left the game here and ironically enough the South did not score.

Star on Defense

Andy was named the outstanding defensive back of the game, and another Art Guepe appointee, Joe Palumbo of U. of Va., was named the outstanding lineman.

As I said before Andy did distinguish himself and I am sure no one was more proud than Tom Coleman. According to Harry Wismer, Andy would have been named the outstanding player of the game had not Fred Benners led the South to their winning touchdown in the waning minutes of the game.

Want No 'Friends'

Abolition of spring football was one of the more specific proposals in the doctrine. The report which took the form of a four page credo also reads that "It is the essence of this proposal that no group of alumni, 'friends' of the college, sports promoters, booster clubs, 'sidewalk' alumni, or any other person not an integral part of the

Columnist Asks Andy Colonials Seek Area Title, To Recall Big Moments Pile Up Victories on Road

By SAM PORTWINE

- "CONSISTENCY THOU ART A JEWEL" and Andy Davis thou art the essence of consistency.

Andy, as you finished your four-year career of inter-collegiate football, what exactly went on in your mind? Did you think of the first game that you played for GW when as an understudy to Joe Buell you almost ran and passed us to a victory over Wake Forest?

Did you think of the victory you carried us to over Virginia, the first and only time GW ever beat the U. Va.? Did the Georgetown win, another first for GW, flash across your mind? How about the winter between your freshman and sophomore years when your injured knee threatened to finish your football career? Or maybe the operation and the weightlifting that was necessary to strengthen your knee and get it back to normal?

Started Slowly As Soph

Perhaps you thought of your sophomore year when you got off to a slow start and people were writing you off prematurely as a has-been? Did you think of how often and how flawlessly you handled all punts in the Lafayette game under adverse weather conditions? You were great again in the Georgetown game as we really trounced them 28-7. Don't forget all the nice compliments paid to you by Jack Haggerty, Georgetown's coach. Did you think of the nice feeling you had as your teammates carried you off the field on their shoulders? You had made stars out of everyone who considered you through. How about the song Tal Dredge and Charley Jones wrote for you? "Sweet Andy Dee He's Only Got One Knee!"

Davis A Receiver

Did you think of the tough schedule that we played in your senior year and that things had not gone just as you would have liked them to go? You must have thought of the South Carolina game? Remember you turned receiver and made that impossible catch in the winning touchdown drive? Did you think of the Virginia game which we lost but how about Virginia's coach Art Guepe coming over after the game and asking you to play in the annual post-season Blue-Grey Game? Maybe your mind was on what had happened this night? We should have beaten Richmond. Did you relive any of the runs you made or passes you threw to break Charley Justice's Southern Conference record for yards gained? Did you think of this unprecedented ceremony for an individual on a GW team and the people who made it possible or were you thinking of how you could show your thanks to them for what they had done? This was your night Andy, did you have a speech or were you thinking of what you were going to say? Did you think that you would have any trouble getting the words out as your teammates lifted you to their shoulders again and your coaches came over to congratulate you and thank you for the wonderful way you had played during the past four years?

Letter Reveals Davis

All my inquiries as to what you were thinking that particular night you finished football playing days for GW are merely after thoughts due to a letter shown me by Tom Coleman, director of Sports Publicity for GW.

The letter was written by you, Andy, to Tom. Rather than try to describe it, I think that all readers of the Hatchet should have the opportunity to read it.

Dear Tom,

I want to thank you in particular for all your efforts throughout the past four years at G.W. Any success I may achieve in the future I can give you credit for. Our close friendship is something I will always cherish but will never end just because I am leaving school. Thank you in particular for tribute you bestowed on me at my last game. I want you to know Tom when I broke that Southern Conference record it was for you because of your faith in me and I hope I will be able to distinguish myself in Alabama to do justice to the wonderful publicity you gave me.

... anytime I can ever be of any assistance to you to make up what you have done for me, I will be more than glad to do so. You are one of the greatest friends I have ever known and one of the most sincere.

ANDY DAVIS

For those who are not familiar with Andy's reference to Alabama, I will explain.

Andy was chosen by Art Guepe to play in the annual Blue-Grey game. The Blue-Grey game consists of outstanding senior stars from the north and south, similar games are the North-South and East-West.

Last One Good

Andy did distinguish himself. In the first half the North team was marching to a touchdown. Andy broke this march up by intercepting a pass in the end zone and carrying the ball out to the fifteen yard line. Later on, an attempted lateral that was unsucc-

Contest's Game Provides Warmup for Finalists

• CONTESTANTS IN the Hatchet Basketball forecast contest will get a chance to practice up for the contest final this week.

Friday night's game with Georgetown is the selected game for the fourth contest to determine who the finalists will be that will compete against each other, in predicting the score of the Colonials game with the same Hoyas on March 7.

Last week Eugene G. Gomolka became the fourth finalist when he most closely estimated the score of the Buff game with VMI. He was only 6 points off; the actual score was GW 77, VMI 62. Gomolka's score read Colonials 76, Keydets 67.

Winners will probably become more accurate as the season progresses and they can estimate the potential strength of both teams more surely.

Contest Rules

- Entries will be judged solely from the standpoint of closeness to actual scores. Selections of winners and losers is not important. In case of a tie, those involved all qualify for the run off.
- A contestant may enter the contest as often as he desires but may submit only one entry for each specified game.
- Entries must be turned in by 3 p.m. the day of the designated game.
- Winning and one of the specified games qualifies a contestant for competition with other weekly winners in guessing the score of the Colonial-Georgetown game, March 7.

Karver Gets a Bundle

Less than 300 people turned out last Tuesday night to watch Elliot Karver, with 27 points, lead the Colonials to an easy 79-54 rout of the University of Richmond.

Karver, who was yanked at the beginning of the last quarter, came within two points of tying the 29 point GW individual scoring record set by Artie Cerra against South Carolina last season.

By TIM McENROE

Elliott was practically the whole Colonial show, as far as scoring was concerned, for Tex Silverman, with 16 points, was the closest the others could come. Karver had been one of the standouts on last year's freshman squad, but when he reported for duty this fall, Coach Reinhart found him to be vastly overweight. Exercise and diet seem to have cured the situation admirably, or else the weight didn't seriously cool off his hot hand.

Last Friday night the Colonials had a harder time than had been expected when they sank the W. and L. Generals 66-60 in Lexington, Va.

Generals Surge

Number 10 for VMI

The Colonials continued their successful march through their Virginia opponents and rang their string to four straight victories as they handed VMI its tenth successive defeat by a score of 77-62 Saturday night.
